Introduction

Lake Life Real Estate is a small, boutique agency located in Skaneateles, New York. As the company entered a major growth period, with its first physical storefront opening this year, Lake Life Real Estate needed media coverage to help expand its brand awareness and attract new customers. With a grand opening event scheduled for November 28th, it was important to hit the ground running and create a media relations plan to secure owned media placements to promote the brand and its services. This manifested in a media list comprising local and regional media contacts, audits of local and regional influencers, and pitches to both audiences: influencers and traditional media contacts. While no placements or coverage were secured, we began forging relationships with multiple media outlets to kick-start plans to hopefully cover Lake Life in the future.

Client Background/Diagnosis

Lake Life Real Estate is a woman-founded boutique brokerage based in Skaneateles, New York, right here, in the Finger Lakes region. The agency was created by Jacqueline ("Jackie") Jones in January 2024, after a serious beach accident pushed her to pursue her long-term goal of working in real estate earlier than expected. Before this career shift, Jackie worked in the male-dominated field of climbing telephone poles, but after recovering from the accident and earning her real estate license, she opened her own independent brokerage. While starting a brokerage this early in a real estate career is not the traditional path, Jackie did it and built a company that focuses on a hands-on, welcoming, and highly personalized approach.

Lake Life is the only agency in the Finger Lakes area that brings together sales, vacation rentals, home staging, and clearing services all in one place. The company runs both Lake Life Real Estate for buying and selling homes as well as Lake Life R&R for short-term rentals. This additional service is different from most other agencies, as people typically choose to specialize in either sales or rentals, not both. However, Jackie does not shy away from rentals; instead, she sees them as a smart way to build relationships with clients who may eventually become long-term buyers. Lake Life is involved from start to finish, helping with contracts, fees, communication before and after stays, and overall property preparation. The agency also offers a referral division for licensed agents who want to keep their license active even if they are taking a break from client work, which reflects Jackie's commitment to supporting people within the industry.

Looking ahead, Lake Life is expanding beyond traditional real estate. Jackie plans to open a lake-themed retail store in November of 2025, offering retail products like kayaks, chairs, snowshoes, coolers, and other items designed to give customers the full "Skaneateles Experience." Shifting towards becoming a full lifestyle brand and helping clients not only buy or rent properties but also provide experiences in the Skaneateles area.

Situation Analysis

Lake Life competes with both national and local real estate firms. Those larger firms (Finger Lakes Sotheby's International Realty, Berkshire Hathaway HomeServices, RE/MAX, and Howard Hanna) have extensive networks, strong brand recognition, and significant resources. Sotheby's, for example, has more than 26,000 agents working across 1,054 offices in 81 countries (Sotheby's International Realty, 2025). While these agencies dominate the broader market, they separate sales and rentals and tend to outsource services like staging and clearing. Lake Life stands out from its competitors for fully integrating these services into its business model to support its mission statement of providing an all-in-one personalized experience for its customers.

On a local level, Lake Life competes with agents and smaller brokerages such as Kelli Ide Real Estate Services, Kayla Hill Homes, and individual agents like Catherine Armijo at Howard Hanna. These local brokerages also generally focus only on buying and selling homes and do not offer help with rentals like Lake Life. That being the case, Lake Life's acceptance of rentals really differentiates them in the real estate market and provides them with a competitive edge that also reinforces their holistic mission statement.

Problem/Opportunity Statement

Lake Life Real Estate Agency faces a communication challenge rooted in limited visibility, an underdeveloped media presence, and a lack of a consistent brand image. The brokerage relies exclusively on word-of-mouth referrals, creating a large opportunity gap for broader brand awareness and positioning within a highly competitive real estate market in the Finger Lakes and Central New York. The company's full-service, all-in-one approach, including sales, rentals, staging, and soon, concierge-style hospitality, is not being clearly communicated to prospective clients. Whether it was trying to be a boutique real estate firm, a rental office for people to get things to use on or around the lake, or something selling the idea of the "Skaneateles Experience," Lake Life's goals have been seemingly unclear.

The issue seems most evident in the lack of media coverage for the brokerage. Lake Life's founder, Jackie, acknowledges that being shy and nervous in public-facing settings has prevented her team from fully leveraging media opportunities as a whole through paid, earned, shared, and owned media. This poses a sizable risk for Lake Life, as the lack of storytelling across media outlets, influencer partnerships, and social channels could result in the brokerage being overshadowed by larger competitors with more established public profiles.

The stakeholders that are affected by this communication gap include prospective buyers and renters, current and past clients, local businesses that could serve as collaborative partners, and regional media outlets interested in small-business storytelling. This is because the agency hasn't clearly communicated its unique offerings, and therefore, everyone who interacts with or promotes Lake Life is affected through these lost opportunities. While many stakeholders may not consciously recognize the effects of Lake Life's nonexistent media presence, it limits the brokerage in terms of client acquisition and partnership opportunities. This also further impacts the company, given that the entire business plan operates through sales. If the firm cannot promote itself (even if its properties are interesting), it cannot get clients. If the clients can not see the content, they are not able to purchase the listings. This issue is important to Lake Life and potential buyers of properties, as the relationship between realtor and buyer is a two-way relationship.

Target Audience

Using the information provided during our client meeting as well as our own research based on the industry, we identified Lake Life Real Estate's primary audience and created an audience persona.

See Appendix 1 to view an AI-Generated Image of the Audience Persona.

Lake Life's target audience is made up of older, high-income adults, generally aged 44 to 65 and older, who are seeking to purchase a second home, vacation property, or simply make investment deals. These buyers are typically professionals with grown children or college-aged dependents. These buyers are not seeking to purchase a home out of necessity, as they are well established in their careers and simply looking for a place to relax that is different from their day-to-day routines. This demographic also values personalized experiences, which would explain why the Finger Lakes are an appealing location, as owning a second home or rental here allows them to engage in experiential lifestyle aspirations the area offers, including wine trails, boating, and community events. The Finger Lakes Region, especially Skaneateles, also draws buyers in with its natural beauty, a calm atmosphere, and a slower pace of life.

These buyers tend to be research-driven and rely heavily on professional guidance for confidence in high-stakes financial decisions, consistent with industry data showing that 88% of buyers use real estate agents (National Association of Realtors). At the foundation of their purchasing motivations, based on conclusions drawn from Maslow's Hierarchy of Needs, are the desires for safety and financial security, belonging, esteem, and self-actualization. Buyers want a solid investment, a sense of belonging, a home to be proud of, and a property that can grow into a family legacy.

This interest in high-end, experience-driven living and vacationing is reflected directly in Jackie's business, where her average real estate sale exceeds $2 million and attracts buyers not only from Central New York but also the West Coast and even international markets. Broader industry data also reinforces this trend: in 2022, 4.6% of all homes in the United States were second properties, and 81 percent of wealthy second-home owners reported using these homes as an escape from stress (Zhao, 2024). The Finger Lakes Region continues to support and benefit from this demand. In 2023 alone, the area generated $4.38 billion in tourism spending, demonstrating that people are actively seeking high-quality vacation experiences and premium properties (Tourism Economics, 2024).

Below is a chart that outlines the media habits of Lake Life's target audience, including the key channels the audience engages with and the specific role that each channel plays in reaching potential clients. While our time constraints kept us from being able to engage with our audience on each channel, this chart helps us to better understand our target audiences, which ultimately helped drive our messaging.

Channel	Role in Journey	Credibility	Key Performance Indicators it influences
Local print (Skaneateles Press, Finger Lakes Times)	Builds initial awareness through community storytelling	High (seen as trusted, local voices)	Media impressions, Share of Voice
Regional lifestyle mags (Syracuse Woman, Life in the Finger Lakes)	Positions Lake Life as a boutique, lifestyle-forward brand	Medium-High	Referral traffic, Inbound inquiries
Instagram & Facebook	Visual validation of properties and team culture	Medium	Engagement rate, Click-throughs to listings
Google Search & Zillow Ads	Functional discovery for buyers actively searching	High	Website traffic, Lead capture

Local radio & podcasts	Reinforces community ties and Jackie's story	Medium	Brand recall, event attendance
Word-of-mouth & Referrals	Validates trust; closes decision gap	Very High	Conversion rate, Referral rate

The media habits table states that when our specific target audience engages with local print outlets that feature companies, like Lake Life, early brand awareness is built. This is because community newspapers are highly trusted sources, which helps to drive engagement. Regional lifestyle magazines, on the other hand, are used to position the company within its niche, in this case, highlighting the fact that Lake Life is a boutique, lifestyle-driven real estate brand. These features help to draw in a larger, localized group of direct and referral traffic to the brand and the Finger Lakes experience. Social media like Instagram and Facebook give buyers a visual confirmation of brand offerings that in Lake Life's case, could help potential users better understand the brokerage's team culture or buying experience. Google Search and Zillow ads reach people who are actively looking for homes or rentals and can be used to drive people towards direct and more immediate sales. Local radio and podcasts strengthen community ties and should be used to share Jackie's unique founding story. Finally, word-of-mouth and direct referrals are the most influential channels because they confirm trust and help buyers feel confident in their choices.

Key Messages

Based on the information about Lake Life's target audiences, we have developed the key messaging (or pitch angles) we would like to focus on during the campaign period.

The core message to be conveyed is Lake Life's unique value proposition, which is grounded in its diverse and inclusive offerings. Lake Life is the only full-service, locally owned brokerage in the Finger Lakes that allows clients to buy, stage, rent, or host, all under one roof. This key messaging will help position Lake Life as a comprehensive, convenient, and trusted resource for buyers and renters, and emphasize its local expertise and full-service approach.

This messaging will be delivered across multiple channels tailored to the audience's media habits, as more thoroughly detailed in our objectives, strategies, and tactics. As the media relations team, the focus is on generating earned media placements within local and regional publications and shareable influencer content, highlighting Lake Life's grand opening storefront event. We will utilize Instagram for influencer outreach and email for traditional media outreach.

The goal of delivering this message through these channels is to push the intended audience to recognize Lake Life as a differentiated, full-service brokerage and act on this recognition by reaching out for information regarding property listings, staging consultations, or rental bookings.

The success of our messaging will be measured through increased media mentions in local and regional outlets, as well as coverage on social media. We also plan to measure the impact of our messaging by analyzing the media attendance at the grand opening storefront event. If neither of these is doable, we plan to measure by counting the number of responses to email & DM pitches.

Objectives

To support Lake Life Real Estate's growth goals and maximize the impact of the grand opening storefront event, the following objectives focus on increasing awareness, driving engagement, and boosting sales through media and influencer efforts:

- Increase awareness of Lake Life Real Estate's grand opening event among local and regional audiences, resulting in a 15% increase in website traffic by December 6th, 2025.
- Generate a 20% increase in retail and concierge sales by November 1st, 2026, by promoting these services on social media and through targeted outreach to regional and local media outlets.
- Increase awareness of Lake Life Real Estate among Syracuse and Central New York audiences by partnering with at least 3 local influencers to promote the grand opening, generating more than 50 social media interactions by December 1, 2025.

Strategies

To achieve Lake Life Real Estate's objectives of increasing awareness, driving engagement, and boosting sales, the following strategies leverage media outreach, influencer partnerships, and digital content to connect with local and regional audiences:

(1) Conduct media outreach via email to Skaneateles local and Central New York regional digital and print outlets, promoting the brand, focusing on one pitch angle which combines both the storefront's grand opening and Lake Life's identity as a women-founded small business. The goal of this strategy is to connect with journalists and encourage them to share Lake Life's mission and service offerings. By reaching local news audiences, it can increase Lake Life Real Estate Agency's overall brand awareness and drive traffic to their website and potentially even their storefront.
(2) Reach out by Instagram to local influencers in Skaneateles and neighboring cities, asking them to partner with Lake Life Real Estate Agency to promote the grand opening event on their social media. The goal of this strategy is to leverage already trusted community voices to boost engagement, increase awareness of Lake Life Real Estate, and generate social media interactions with the brand.

(3) Create engaging Instagram and TikTok content showcasing the grand opening, available properties, and concierge services. This tactic drives website traffic and sales, as well as, promotes retail and concierge offerings.

Tactics

- Strategy (1): To position Lake Life Real Estate Agency as a trusted brand, these tactics focus on preparing Jackie for earned media opportunities while securing local and regional coverage that showcases Lake Life's unique story and diverse offerings.
    - Compile a media list of local and regional digital and print outlets to target journalists covering real estate, lifestyle, and small business.
    - Develop a living document of talking points for Jackie to maintain consistent messaging during media interactions.
    - Draft and distribute a media pitch for the November 28th grand opening to ensure timely coverage and drive customer engagement.
    - Draft and distribute a pitch to journalists who cover local business and entrepreneurship, promoting Lake Life Real Estate Agency as a women-founded small business.
- Strategy (2): These tactics focus on building authentic connections with local influencers to tap into new audiences across Central New York. By engaging with trusted voices, Lake Life Real Estate Agency can generate organic buzz in the place that matters most, online, further generating brand advocacy.
    - Conduct an influencer audit of Syracuse and Central New York to identify local influencers as potential brand ambassadors.
    - Draft DM (direct message) copy text and then message the chosen influencers, inviting them to the grand opening and encouraging them to share content at the event via their social media platforms.
- Strategy (3): These tactics focus first on building excitement around the grand opening and second on creating cohesive social media content and design resources to establish a consistent online presence that drives brand engagement.
    - Create grand opening social media content to promote the event, and share on owned channels (website, Instagram, Facebook) to engage with loyal audiences and drive new traffic.
    - Create a content calendar and design ready-to-use social media templates for Jackie to easily promote new property listings and retail product launches.

PESO Model

Our specialty as an agency is focused on influencer marketing and media relations, which are predominantly paid, earned, and shared opportunities. With that being the case, we do not have any deliverables to disclose that are directly concerned with owned media. However, after pitching media and contacting local influencers, here's what we ended up with:

Paid Media

In terms of paid media, we received media bites from Heaven Longo, a marketing consultant at FLX Local Media, a local Finger Lakes Radio Group. The consultant expressed interest in attending the event or if she couldn't attend, offered to set up a time to interview the founder.

See Appendix 2 to review the email response from the contact at FLX Local Media.

Our team responded by inviting the marketing consultant to the event and offering the opportunity to meet the founder during the event, but we did not receive any further communication.

See Appendix 3 to view our team's email, responding to the initial interest.

It is to be noted that the potential of these paid media opportunities was accounted for in the initial budget, and we have reached out to the client to see if this is something that she would be interested in.

See Appendix 4 for the email sent to founder Jackie Jones, inquiring about if this paid marketing opportunity is something she might be interested in.

Earned Media

Unfortunately, we were unable to secure any earned media placements before the storefront's grand opening. This is something that we were definitely hoping for, as it would have helped attract foot traffic to the event and help widen the brand's awareness.

We received a response from Jason Gabak, an Editor at Eagle News Online based out of Syracuse. While he was unable to actually attend the grand opening event in person, he offered to take a look at any visuals and press materials provided following the event, to see if it is something that he might be interested in covering.

See Appendix 5 to review the email response from our contact at Eagle News Online.

We reached out to the client to obtain the materials to send over to Eagle News, as we were not present at the event. However, we did not receive any communication materials.

> See Appendix 6 for the email sent to founder Jackie Jones, inquiring about if this press opportunity is something she might be interested in, as well as her response, detailing that she plans to get back to us.

Shared Media

We obtained the login credentials for Lake Life Real Estate Agency's Instagram account to pitch local and regional influencers, as detailed in the Influencer audit. We received two responses from those influencers pitched, one declining and one interested in getting more information.

> See Appendix 7 to view the responses our team received via Instagram messaging.

Timeline

From October 15 to December 1, we will focus on building awareness and engagement around Lake Life Real Estate Agency's Skaneateles storefront grand opening (November 28th). Leading up to it, we plan to reach out to local media and influencers, finalize talking points for Jackie to rely on during media interactions, and share sneak peeks of the storefront on social media.

On the day of the event, media, influencers, and community members will be able to enjoy food and refreshments while learning about the agency's offerings and concierge services and browsing retail products. During the event, professionals will also be capturing photos and videos to be used for social content later on.

After the grand opening, we plan to follow up with media who couldn't attend the event, and then continue to pitch Lake Life as a women-founded, locally owned business. We will also be working on an ongoing basis to create branded social media templates for Jackie to have on hand for all her future social media needs.

The following timeline includes all of these tactics mentioned, listed in a chronological order, based on priority, including deadlines/due dates, to ensure we can provide deliverables of substance to our client.

    - In attendance: local and regional media, selected influencers, and community members.
    - Sell retail products, host educational workshops/concierge services, and promote current property listings.
    - Capture photos and videos (coordinated by the events team) for immediate social media use and post-event pitching purposes.
    - Encourage Jackie to post real-time content from the event across social media platforms.

November 29 – December 7

- Distribute a follow-up email to the media who could not attend, from the grand opening Media List, recapping the event, including photos and quotes from attendees via email (week of 12.1).

Budget

The tactics outlined from October 15th through December 7th are prioritized to align directly with our goal, that is, for Lake Life Real Estate Agency to become the number one real estate and concierge broker in Skaneateles.

With that, as the media relations team our strategy relies less on the investment of money to see results, and more on relationship building to generate earned media placements. Our tactics are prioritized based on time constraints, given the bulk of our work will be done leveraging the Lake Life Real Estate Agency storefront grand opening. However, we want to point out that we have allocated $500 for paid placements, as some journalists require you to pay to be featured within their publication. While this scenario is unlikely, we've allocated funds in case an opportunity arises where a paid placement proves to be strategically valuable.

Beyond print media placements, we were also tasked with developing an influencer strategy. Once again, this strategy is against time constraints for the grand opening event, hence why we prioritized it earlier in the timeline. The influencer partnerships for the grand opening event may require some paid collaborations, so we've chosen to be cautious and allocate $500 for up to three influencers. While this may be a stretch, as securing influencers for the event may be challenging, allocating these funds provides flexibility. And, if we are able to attract participants, they will likely be nano influencers with under 10K followers, the cheapest of them all.

The return on investment of the financial budget ties back to our objectives, those being: increasing website traffic by 15% by December 7th, 2025 (through earned grand opening event media), driving a 20% increase in retail and concierge sales by November 1st, 2026 (through in press coverage), and increasing overall brand awareness on social media (by partnering with at least three local influencers).

Item	Description	Estimated Cost
Local Paid Placements	In case journalists come back to us in a pay-for-play landscape	$500
Potential Paid Influencers (3)	Proposing the following: an Instagram feed post in exchange for compensation (obviously not confirmed)	$500
TOTAL		$1,000

Reporting & Evaluation

The initial research conducted at the beginning of the campaign period provided a strong foundation for understanding Lake Life's target audience, identifying key messages, and determining the most effective channels for outreach. While the research guided the primary strategies, the execution phase revealed areas where limited bandwidth affected full implementation of the campaign.

We have outlined exactly what it is that we were able to accomplish and what we weren't able to, using the PESO model to detail the outcomes.

Paid Media

- Received paid media bites from FLX Local Media, initially understood as unpaid and earned media. This opportunity was sent to Jackie to take over and manage, if interested.

  See Appendix 10 to see email exchanges between our team and client lead.

Earned Media (Traditional Print/Digital Media Outreach)

- Responses: Two media outlets responded expressing interest in covering the grand opening.
  - We have been in contact with client lead, Jackie Jones, passing these media relationships off to her to take over as the semester concludes.

    See Appendix 11 to see email exchanges between our team and client lead.

- Outcome: While both outlets indicated interest in covering the story, their engagement still represents success given the short campaign window and the competitiveness of the local news space.
- Analysis: This shows that our pitch angle and messaging resonated with local journalists, but additional time and follow-ups may have led to more confirmed stories. This was further affected by delays in receiving approvals from our client lead, Jackie Jones.

Shared Media (Influencer Outreach)

- Responses: Two influencers responded to outreach. One of them declined, stating that they were based in New York City, and the other responded asking for more information.

See Appendix 7 to view the responses our team received, via Instagram messaging.

- Analysis: This suggests that either the incentive was not compelling enough, the timing was too tight, or the selected influencers were not great fits. It also reflects the broader challenge of breaking through influencer inbox clutter without an existing relationship, especially for a difficult brand concept like a real estate brokerage.

Owned Media

- Strategy three (social media content creation) was not executed due to the scope of our objectives exceeding our initially defined niche in media and influencer relations.

Despite the lack of media placements, the campaign successfully positioned the grand opening as a newsworthy local event and laid the groundwork for future media relationships. This should give Lake Life more confidence as the brand continues to grow..

Recommendations

While the future of Lake Life Real Estate is definitely bright, the brand must better prioritize their public relations goals to ensure no one's time is wasted. The company is still in a major growth period, with the first storefront just now opening. That said, our team may have overshot what we could actually deliver, given that the Lake Life team is relatively small in size. Because of this, it is likely that Jackie felt quite overwhelmed by the plethora of opportunities/information thrown at her during our agency partnership. As the brand begins to define itself during its early stages, we recommend prioritizing:

- Outline a Smaller Set of Core PR Goals: Detailing a few high-impact objectives during the initial client meeting will help the company obtain the best return on investment. This will ensure that PR efforts feel manageable and aligned with the brand's immediate growth stage, rather than stretching the team too thin.
- Establish a Streamlined Approval Process: Creating structured processes for approvals will help objectives turn around more efficiently.
- Build a Stronger Foundation Before Expanding Tactics: Before tackling larger initiatives, such as influencer partnerships for example, Lake Life should ensure that it is confident in its internal communication processes.
    - For example, Lake Life likely shouldn't have committed to hosting a grand opening event prior to signing on the property. But, because they did, it resulted in solely a soft opening, as the signage didn't arrive in time.
- Invest in Long-Term PR Infrastructure: As the company continues to grow, adding team members or outsourcing specific PR functions (like social content creation or media relations) can help sustain a positive growth trajectory and prevent agency overwhelm. This investment will also support future growth in foot traffic and sales engagement.

- Note that Jackie mentioned she is currently working on onboarding a social media content creator.

Hi Eleanor,
It's great to connect with another Newhouse connection! I'm Heaven Longo, a marketing consultant with FLX Local Media. I graduated with my master's in Advertising from Newhouse in 2022. :)

I hope you're doing well! I received your invitation to the Lake Life Real Estate Agency Grand Opening on November 28th and would love to attend if possible. Could you share the event start time so I can plan accordingly?

If attending that day isn't feasible, I'd still love to set up a time to meet with you and the founder beforehand to discuss ways to promote the Grand Opening and the new storefront. Please let me know what works best for your schedule.

Looking forward to connecting and learning more about Lake Life!

Best regards,

Hi Heaven,

Thank you so much for getting back to me. It's always great to connect with a fellow Newhouse student. Go Orange!

We'd love for you to attend the event, it will run from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the new storefront located on 38 E Genesee Street, in Skanteatles, NY. Come by anytime that works for you! It would be great to have you come meet the founder, Jackie Jones, and discuss opportunities then.

Looking forward to it,

Appendix 4

Hi Jackie,

I also wanted to bring your attention to another opportunity we recieved following our outreach for the grand opening event.

We received a response from Heaven Longo, a marketing consultant at FLX Local Media (see email exchange below). While she expressed interest in attending the event and meeting with you, I wanted to flag that FLX Local Media typically operates on a paid media model rather than offering earned editorial coverage.

This type of arrangement can still be valuable for targeted local promotion, but it would likely involve a financial commitment rather than traditional press coverage. Before moving forward with any conversations, I wanted to check to see if you would you like us to explore this paid media opportunity on your behalf?

If you're interested in learning more about their services and pricing, I'm happy to coordinate a meeting with Heaven.

Please let me know your preference, and I'm happy to handle this accordingly.

Best,

Eleanor Young

Appendix 5

Hi Eleanor,

Unfortunately I will probably not be able to make it out for the grand opening. I'm spread a little thin and don't really have any staff or anyone to send, just me.

I'd be happy to see what can do if you want to send a picture from the grand opening and a brief press release and then if I have any questions or anything I can reach out from there.

Let me know if you have any questions or anything.

Thanks,

Jason

Appendix 6

Hi Jackie,

I hope you're doing well and had an amazing Grand Opening Event! I wanted to follow up regarding the recent event, as we received interest from a contact at Eagle News Online and would love to provide them with materials to share.

Could you please send over any digital assets and a brief write-up about the event? I've included the email exchange with Eagle News Online below for context.

Thank you so much for your help!

Eleanor

Hello

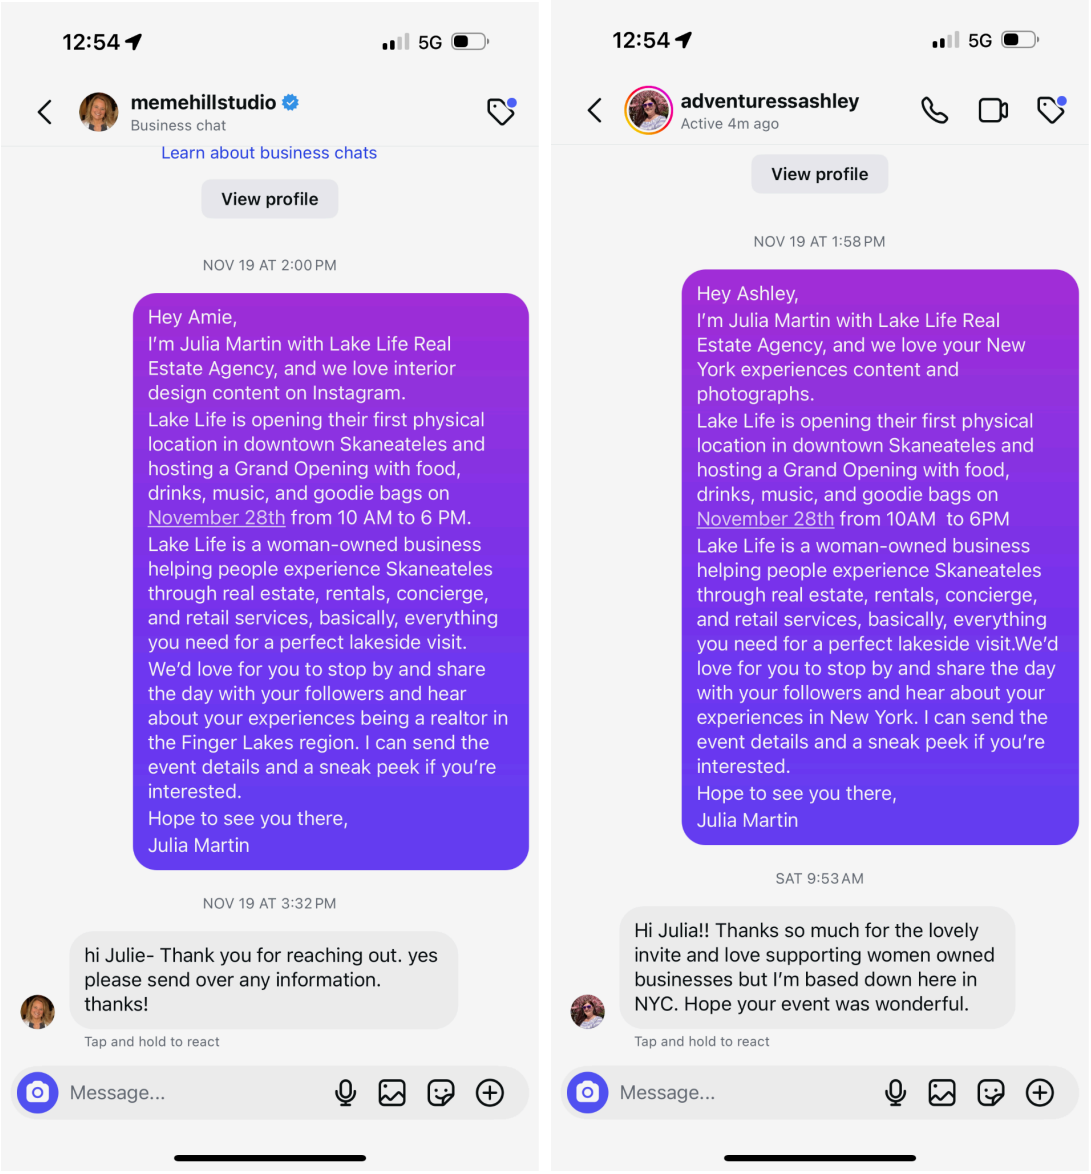

We are hoping to plan a real event and GRAND OPENING! We didn't open our doors, but quietly.

Let me write something up and perhaps we can plan an event, upcoming. I want to get the sign up as I think it might help bring folks in.

Thank you, team!

Jackie

Hi XX,

I hope you're doing well! I am reaching out today about Lake Life Real Estate Agency, a business providing a new way to experience Skaneateles. Lake Life Real Estate Agency is a woman-owned business that's redefining what it means to live (and vacation) by the lake.

Beyond connecting people to homes, rentals, and vacation properties in the Skaneateles Lake and Finger Lakes region, the business is creating a true lakeside lifestyle hub through its new downtown storefront, officially opening November 28th.

Lake Life Real Estate Agency approaches the Real Estate process differently:

- Real Estate & Rentals: From dream homes to short-term stays, Lake Life helps clients find their perfect place on or near the lake.
- Retail Boutique: The new storefront offers experience and activity based finds, perfect for visitors and residents alike.
- Concierge Services: Whether guests want to get out on the water, find the best local eats, or need last-minute help finding kayaks to rent or towels to buy, Lake Life's concierge services are here to help them make the most of their Skaneateles stay.

With a mission to support both visitors and the local community, Lake Life provides a year-round window into everything that makes the region so special, blending real estate expertise with small-town hospitality and lakeside charm.

We'd love to have you join us for the Grand Opening Storefront Event on November 28th in the Village of Skaneateles to experience Lake Life firsthand and meet the team behind this new venture. Enjoy food, drinks, music, and take home a goodie bag!

Let me know if this can fit into your upcoming coverage plans both in print and on social media. I'd be happy to share additional details or help arrange an interview with the founder.

Best,

XX

Hi Jackie,

I also wanted to bring your attention to another opportunity we recieved following our outreach for the grand opening event.

We received a response from Heaven Longo, a marketing consultant at FLX Local Media (see email exchange below). While she expressed interest in attending the event and meeting with you, I wanted to flag that FLX Local Media typically operates on a paid media model rather than offering earned editorial coverage.

This type of arrangement can still be valuable for targeted local promotion, but it would likely involve a financial commitment rather than traditional press coverage. Before moving forward with any conversations, I wanted to check to see if you would you like us to explore this paid media opportunity on your behalf?

If you're interested in learning more about their services and pricing, I'm happy to coordinate a meeting with Heaven.

Please let me know your preference, and I'm happy to handle this accordingly.

Best,

Eleanor Young

Hi Jackie,

I hope you're doing well and had an amazing Grand Opening Event! I wanted to follow up regarding the recent event, as we received interest from a contact at Eagle News Online and would love to provide them with materials to share.

Could you please send over any digital assets and a brief write-up about the event? I've included the email exchange with Eagle News Online below for context.

Thank you so much for your help!

Eleanor
